

Dark shaded areas around coast are composed of very loose sediment at areas that can only be navigated by a very small boat or not at all. The lighter shaded areas can be navigated by a small boat and is composed of loose sediment. The depth at the piers has been dredged to allow passage of large ships.